VANCOUVER
BEST PRACTICES & INNOVATIONS IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION
2013 SUMMER INSTITUTE

Limited spaces are available for a course with some of North America’s best physical educators

This summer institute builds upon fundamental understandings of curriculum and pedagogy in physical education. It further engages learners to critically assess the theory and practice of physical education, reconceptualize curricular development, and examine innovative pedagogies for learning movement.

The institute is ideal for beginning physical education teachers who are interested in working alongside experienced graduate teachers of physical education.

The focus for the first week will be elementary levels (kindergarten through grade 7), followed by secondary levels (grades 8-12) during the second week. These afternoon classes will include daily two-hour practical sessions.

Instructors
Join Dr. Jamie Mandigo and Dr. Nancy Francis of Brock University, along with Dr. Steve Mitchell of Kent State University, and UBC’s Dr. Joy Butler, for this intensive and rewarding learning experience.
